

MINNIE

...So I signed it over to him. As a token of my trust.

ANNA

You signed over... everything? The money? The land in Texas? It's all you have!

MINNIE

He is to be my future husband. What's mine is his.

ANNA

I see. Well, it all makes sense now. I knew there had to be something.

MINNIE

What are you insinuating?

ANNA

"What are you insinuating"? You're starting to sound like a Yankee.

MINNIE

Why can't you be happy for me? I wanted you to come up here and see for yourself how real it was.

ANNA

...I'm sorry. I'm not trying to ruin your moment. I just don't want you to get taken advantage of.

MINNIE

He won't.

ANNA

I should tell you... He invited me to stay for the summer.

MINNIE

That's wonderful! I knew he'd take to you.

ANNA

Gracious. Don't you see?

MINNIE

What-?

ANNA

You're eternal naivete is sometimes charming, but mostly annoying. I must tell you...

MINNIE

Please don't insult me.

ANNA

I don't mean to. Minnie... he wants to meet me on the rooftop tonight. Alone.

It finally sinks in. Minnie is breathless.

MINNIE

What did you tell him?

ANNA

I told him I would.

Minnie is shocked.

ANNA (CONT'D)

Listen. I think you should hide yourself and watch the whole thing. See if he makes a pass at me. If he does, pack your bags. A man like that is not worthy of being anyone's husband.

MINNIE

A girl like you is not worthy of being anyone's sister.
