FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Ten Tops* Takes The Plunge Tonight and Gives “Birth”

Los Angeles, CA (August 22, 2018) Escape the heat, enjoy a refreshing beverage and take in some unpredictable entertainments tonight, Wednesday, August 22, as Sacred Fools' longest-running ongoing show Ten Tops returns for its August installment with the optional theme “Birth.”

Taking place in the Broadwater Plunge, this edition of Ten Tops might feature performances with that theme in mind... or it might not, as the full lineup of performers won't be set until moments before... and anyone can show up and perform.

Ten Tops is the theatrical equivalent of an open-mic night without the stand-up comics. The formula for the show has undergone minor tweaks in its 20-plus seasons, but basically remains the same – the first ten performers to sign up get up to seven minutes each to do anything they want, from sketch comedy to dramatic readings to dance. The only prohibitions: No pyrotechnics, no glitter, no expression of bodily fluids, and no stand-up comedy.

“I've always enjoyed Ten Tops' anything-goes vibe; it's exciting not to know what's coming next, or to see people displaying a talent or interest you didn't know they had,” says co-producer Corey Klemow. “It was also my first opportunity to perform on the Fools stage, and has been the entry point to the company for several of our longstanding company members." Joining Klemow in producing Ten Tops are Aaron Francis and Ed Goodman, who also serves as the show's host.

All Are Welcome, Tickets are Free

Anyone can participate: sign-ups for performers begin at 7:30 pm, in order of arrival. If all ten slots are already filled by the time a performer arrives, they can also sign up for the 'Charisma Round,' taking place after the main show where performers get three minutes each. Seats are available on a first-come, first-served basis and tickets are free for patrons and performers.
